Horizon Milling Employee Wins Corporate Award for Outstanding Volunteerism

RUSH CITY, Minn. — Cargill recently presented a Cargill Cares Volunteer Award to Dennis Pederson, an employee of Horizon Milling, for his outstanding volunteer service. Dennis has volunteered almost 30 years with the Boy Scouts of America, serving in several positions and providing leadership to support the commitment of scouting and the values it brings to the development of youth. Horizon Milling is a joint venture flour milling business of Minnesota-based Cargill and CHS Inc.

To recognize Dennis' commitment to community, Cargill has contributed $1,000 to the Boy Scouts of America, Indianhead Council. Dennis is among a special group of Cargill employees and retirees around the world to receive a Cargill Cares Volunteer Award since its inception in 1998.

“Cargill encourages our employees and retirees to give back to the community and is proud of the unselfish ways in which they enrich the communities where we conduct business,” said Mark Murphy, manager of corporate citizenship for Cargill. “The Cargill Cares Volunteer Awards program is one way we recognize and thank Cargill employees for their important contribution to our communities.”

“Dennis has been a tremendous leader in this community. He volunteers countless hours to benefit our youth. We are pleased to recognize his efforts,” said Mike Ginal, facility manager for Horizon Milling in Rush City.
